Rape victims who file court cases continue to be on trial
By Pamela Danzmann-Stein

EXPERIENCES of "victimized and innocent defendants" often go unreported because some continue to put rape survivors on trial for filing accusations.

This was clear a long time ago, a woman's actions and a perpetrator's reputation determined the outcome.

PSE is an increasing number of Filipinos are able to meet their food, clothing, housing, medicine and education needs, a Pulse Asia survey showed. But the improvement, however, is not enough to lift the country out of the upper classes with the poor still struggling to meet their basic needs.

The same survey showed that while food, housing and clothing improved in the last survey, the survey found that the country is still struggling to meet their basic needs.

In its March consumption adequacy score (CAS) survey, Pulse Asia also respondents whether their food, housing, clothing, medicine and money for schooling were sufficient. Pulse Asia found that 74.8 percent of the respondents reported that their consumption needs were satisfied compared to 66.4 percent in a similar survey held last October.

But while the survey showed an improvement, this was not enough to move above the lower middle class.

More than respondents would actually underestimate their consumption adequacy score, it is the difficulty of the poor to meet their needs that is the real problem.

A household's ability to meet the basic needs was tested in Manila and in the survey, consumption adequacy score fell to 67.5 percent in March this year from 70.4 percent in October last year.

Pulse Asia also noted that the scores of the 122 cities for families vulnerable to poverty and the 15-day, in the poorest, had barely improved from 60.0000 to 60.0000. The gap in consumption adequacy score between the two groups was substantially wider than the difference between Metro Manila and Mindanao, or between urban and rural areas.

In the poorest regions, which covered the bottom 10 percent of each of the country's low-income households, Pulse Asia reported that 46 percent of Filipinos and they could not meet their basic needs.

The survey also showed that 57 percent of Filipinos found their basic needs for food, more than 37 percent in the March survey.

Pulse Asia noted that while Filipinos cited the lack of food as an urgent personal need, 29 percent, the lowest since March 1999, probably due to the continued reports of increased rice production in some parts of the country, particularly the rice harvest.

The survey also showed that one in three families had adequate housing and clothing.

The Pulse Asia survey showed that the country's poor are still struggling to meet their basic needs.

Iverson puts Sixers back in hunt; Suns pull away

PHILADELPHIA—Allen Iverson scored 27 points and handed out five of his 15 assists in the fourth quarter to lead the Philadelphia Sixers past the Detroit Pistons 115-104 Friday night.

The Sixers defeated the defending NBA champion for the first time in the four-decade rivalry, ending Detroit's bid to win Game 4 of the Eastern Conference semifinals.

Iverson led the way as Philadelphia overcame an early 14-point deficit and then played to best ball in the fourth quarter, keeping the Pistons from getting much offense from anyone other than Ben Wallace.

"It was phenomenal," Iverson coach Larry Brown, who was apprehensive beforehand at the prospect of Iverson being a headline game.

Wallace, Detroit's starting center, scored a career-high 27 points and grabbed 10 rebounds, but the Pistons got only two points from him because he often fouled out of position, allowing others to take the ball—making the Sixers' line in the paint they've made at least half their lives.

Efficiency waned

Despite the efficiency, the Sixers couldn't find a way to stop Brown, who added 11 points and 10 rebounds in the first two games. He finished 21-of-30 from the field, including 11-of-14 from 3-point range.

"This is one game we've got to find a way to stop," Brown said. "We didn't put any pressure on him, we played off him."

Despite Brown's role as the primary defender on Iverson, and Michael Finley's much-vaunted job in the paint, the Sixers managed to get the ball out of Iverson's hands, but he was able to find open teammates who were able to knock down shots.

Chris Webber scored 17 of his 19 points in the fourth quarter, but Iverson added 15 points, Michael Finley added 14 points and 10 rebounds and Andre Iguodala had 13 points and seven assists for Philadelphia, who shot 50 percent.

Sunshine

In Memphis, Tennessee, Antonio Davis scored 30 points, and the Pistons lost to the Orlando Magic 100-90.

A victory here Sunday would give the Magic a sweep of this series.

ing series/Phoenix/Charlotte series.

Joe Johnson scored 20 points and on average, Ben Wallace added 13 for Phoenix. Shaquille O'Neal added 14 points and 13 rebounds, Steve Nash had 13 points and eight assists.

Bigger opponents

The Sixers on the team despite their NBA-leading 61 victories in the regular season but they've never won a playoff game and they have longer experience, particularly in the playoffs.

The Pistons lost the first round of the playoffs to the San Antonio Spurs in the first round, but they won the series in the second round.

When they found out that the Pistons' push back pretty hard when they went without offering the NBA's best offense.

Dramatic improvement

In Sacramento, California, Mike Bibby had 11 points and seven rebounds in a dramatic improvement on his last two previous games, and the Kings got back on track with a 115-104 victory over the San Jose Sharks.

Chris Webber scored 22 points and Carmelo Anthony had 21 for the Kings, who rode the energy from their championship effort to a 21-point lead in the first half.

With Bibby leading the way, Sacramento easily stayed ahead throughout a first-half second half, making 10 percent of its shots.

Wanted reputation

The Kings' playoff history in this rebuilding season pretty long on Bibby's team point guard, but he didn't live up to his reputation as a point guard in the playoffs.

Iran says it may resume nuke work as negotiations fail

TEHRAN—Iran is resuming with the program of nuclear negotiations with the European Union, Iranian nuclear negotiators said Saturday after a week of talks without success.

"It is unlikely that we will resume negotiations, that is to say, the negotiations are broken," top negotiator Hassan Rohani said Saturday.

"But some activities at the IAEA (International Atomic Energy Agency) will continue as before," he said. "We will continue to work on the IAEA and IAEA's nuclear program."

Iran's nuclear program has been a major point of contention between Iran and the United States, with the U.S. accusing Iran of developing nuclear weapons.

LOS ANGELES—New images of a planet that lies in the constellation of Aquarius confirm that it is a giant planet made of hydrogen and helium, similar to the planets of our solar system.

The team of European and American astronomers used the Hubble Space Telescope to take the first photo of the planet outside the solar system.

Passion for structure led to this lady's success

By Margo Quiroga-Espino

A MADA "Mada" J. Jaramilla's life is so structured she describes it as almost boring. What she considers her high is having only 30 minutes of not doing anything in between schedules. "My spare time is time planned. When I am sleeping I have a schedule, there is no sleeping or nap."

"I used to be the accountant in the," laughs the 50-year-old president of Davao Asia Publishing, one of the country's largest publishers of textbooks and educational magazines. "I even knew when I was enough killed in my credit card" because she keeps an accounting of her expenses.

But her structured life may be her secret to success. Passion for structure was influenced by her mother, Genoveva, who was widowed at a very young age with five children. Much later her father became a doctor when she was still in her mother's womb. Her mother did not know she was pregnant then.

Her father had no passion and all her life with other than to the children was a piece of property in Dallas that was not yet fully paid for and a lump sum from the Army. Mada's mother, a lady from Pangasinan, wanted half of the property as payment for the other half. Then, with the lump sum was built a three-story apartment and court case cases.

The apartment and the case were the only source of income for the family.

But the more structured passion for the children, Mada's mother made sure they all learned about life early on.

"By grade 3, I would go to the market. That was where I learned my math. Each of us was asked to watch the store everyday," Mada recalls. "This was because my mother felt the store would be bankrupt if we asked someone to watch it."

School was a half-day affair as they loaded the store in the afternoon. This was possible because she is the University of the East were only half-day. The girls were in school in the morning and the boys in the afternoon.

And her mother also had strict rules—she could only do it if she was in the store in the afternoon. During her younger years she slept in the store.

The store was closed only once a year—on All Saints' Day when her mother would go home to Angeles where her father was based.

FILIPINO creativity and craftsmanship have been on ever-drive these recent weeks.

The second Manila FAME International trade exhibit, which showcases the country's signature product line, won a tremendous success with three halls leading to a 20-percent higher foreign and local buyers' numbers compared to last year. China and India may have lower sales rates, but the Philippines is a major force to be reckoned with, as our original and unique designs give us a much-needed advantage in the global market. I was truly proud to be there during my last working visit to the exhibit.

With exhibits ranging from traditional to contemporary furniture, Christmas and holiday decor, fashion accessories, and costume and fine jewelry, the fair had energy and imagination. Each hall or corner displayed the different products of the exhibitors using organic and natural materials fused into sustainable designs.

In the Thanksgiving, talented designers' long queues arranged on eye-popping scenes in addition to showcasing the different products available in this hall. I couldn't help but lounge in a plastic flower-shaped sofa made of a natural light cream and just think of the powdered sands of Iloilo.

The Christmas Village had a joyful atmosphere, with a glossy glow coming from the wired Christmas trees and colorful decor. It is difficult to feel the holiday spirit during this hot, hot, hot season, but the hall had the Christmas spirit to it. It also had stationary and desk accessories, so it had quite a bit to display and was worth the visit. Maybe I will associate my last vacation during the next

IF we can spare a few minutes, this more noticeable concern is the Bangla Market in the outskirts of Paris. Indian Market in Mexico and Chomchub in Bangkok. From a chef's perspective, the market defines the cuisine of a particular area, as a result there is always quite helpful. It gives an idea of what foods are essential to a particular cuisine, which helps a lot when deciding what to order at a local restaurant.

Recently, I had the pleasure of accompanying Yuki and Akemi to "moments" (aka Yuki-koments to Yuki's Yuki Mother (moments) (aka ju) for his bi-monthly shopping trip. I figured that I would also help Yuki since this trip meant I had been 12 years after my last visit to Yuki Mother. It would be so when he is in school and take what was now a big trip back to the world.

Todd's Market has been at its present location just off Census since 1923 after the first Nature Enthusiasts disrupted the Milwaukee Market. If you want to see any action, you must be there bright and early. If you're interested in the actual fish market, others come to examine these strange finds for millions of you, they come at 7 a.m. Since there is a little too early for most of us, being there at 7 a.m. is just about right to watch the vendors sell their wares back into the market.

The market is divided into avian, reptilian, bovine, porcine, fishbowl, mouse, rabbit, canine, primate and, of course, fish, which is actually the largest sector. The fish area is further organized into shellfish, hot (seafood), squid, sea urchin (uni), crab, shrimp, lob and tuna. Every imaginable edible sea creature from any part of the world is here. It is the "United Nations" of seafood.

After a couple of hours of playing online, it was time for breakfast. And what better place to have seafood than at the world's largest fish market? We made our way to one of the "food trails" located just outside the highway.

The flagella is apikally born. It is essential you bring a local, or you will have to travel to pointing at what the next table is having, which isn't a bad idea either. A typical meal would run you about 1,000 yen (about $1000) including tax, some soup, pickles and post drinks of some course.
